ANNOUNCING THE MUSIC OF PINK FLOYD WITH THE COLORADO SYMPHONY

The music of psychedelic rock legends Pink Floyd comes to Boettcher Concert Hall on April 15, 2023

Oct. 31, 2022 – Denver, CO – The Music of Pink Floyd comes to Boettcher Concert Hall on April 15, 2023. Bridging the gulf between rock n’ roll and classical music and accompanied by singer Randy Jackson’s fabulous vocals, creator Brent Havens guest conducts the Colorado Symphony as they capture Pink Floyd’s ethereal flow of music and effects while churning out new musical colors.

“My concept for The Music of Pink Floyd was to take the music as close to the originals as we could and then add some colors to enhance what the original group had done,” says Havens. “The wonderful thing with an orchestra is that you have an entire palette to call upon. The band is reproducing what Pink Floyd did on the albums, as closely as possible, and then having an orchestra behind the band gives the music a richness, a whole different feel, a whole different sense of depth.”

Delivering vocals out front, singer Randy Jackson (lead singer of the rock band Zebra), acts as a window between the audience and reworked material. “The music itself is one thing, but Jackson more than captures the spirit of the original singers,” says Havens.

The 2-plus hour concert features 17 Pink Floyd tunes, including “Money”, “Learning to Fly”, “Comfortably Numb” and other selections from The Wall.
