COLORADO SYMPHONY HORN QUARTET TO PERFORM FREE COMMUNITY CONCERT IN RIVERFRONT PARK PLAZA

Free downtown performance will take place under Ana Maria Hernando's sculpture, "To Let the Sky Know / Dejar que el cielo sepa"

Jun. 30, 2025 – Denver, CO – The Colorado Symphony is bringing live symphonic music to the heart of downtown with a free lunchtime performance by its horn quartet on Thursday, July 10 from 12:00–1:00 p.m. at Riverfront Park Plaza, located at the base of the Millennium Bridge.

Presented in partnership with the Riverfront Park Community Foundation, the concert is part of an ongoing effort to enrich the neighborhood through accessible, high-quality arts programming. As the Foundation celebrates 25 years of fostering excellence, diversity, and opportunity in downtown Denver, it continues to support community-centered activations that create a welcoming and vibrant public environment for residents, workers, and visitors alike. This event coincides with the public art exhibition To Let the Sky Know / Dejar que el cielo sepa by celebrated artist Ana María Hernando. The Colorado Symphony's performance continues its commitment to community engagement by activating outdoor spaces and enriching the cultural landscape of Denver.

"Our musicians are dedicated to bringing music beyond Boettcher Concert Hall and into the heart of our city and communities," said Daniel Wachter, President & CEO of the Colorado Symphony. "Riverfront Park Plaza is the perfect setting for a vibrant celebration of art, music, and place to bring everyone in our community together."

As the state's premier orchestra, the Colorado Symphony performs across the Denver metro region and throughout Colorado, and this performance offers a unique opportunity for residents, downtown professionals, and visitors alike to enjoy live symphonic music during the lunch hour — all for free.

The horn quartet will perform a curated program of classical favorites and popular selections, creating a lively and accessible musical experience that reflects the Symphony's mission to inspire and connect Colorado communities through the power of music.
